Community Colleges: Meeting students at the front door in a growing and changing America.

With the Workforce Innovation and Opportunity Act now in effect, community colleges will continue to play a large role in educating Americans. This act passed July 22nd, 2014 focuses on helping job seekers with education, employment, support services and training. (U.S. Department of Labor, 2014) Community Colleges will continue to fill the role of training people to expand their existing skills, educate those returning to the workforce, transferring to a four year college, and for students who want good careers that don't require a large amount of time and money. Many community colleges also form partnerships within the community to assist students with more specialized training which also provides necessary jobs.

In the fall of 2013 there were a record number of students entering colleges and universities. According to U.S. Department of Education, National Center for Education Statistics, that number was 21.8 million. Community colleges continue to be at the forefront of this number as many students are seeking ways to find an affordable means to their education and training. Community colleges offer transferability to four year colleges, helping the unemployed develop new job skills, and help students improve training to assist with their current jobs. Community/two year colleges are also often more flexible with schedules with many offering entire degrees on-line, and offering more classes in the evenings and weekends.

To assist in the educational process, students need support in all areas of higher education. Mental health and career counseling are important not only in retention of student's but also in supporting the student's overall educational, emotional and career goals. Many community/two year colleges have highly qualified mental health and career counseling professionals ready to assist students with their needs.

The American College Counseling Association has completed a fourth survey to continue to gather important data about the services provided by community/two year colleges. The survey was distributed to a compiled list of community colleges across the United States; the list serves of ACCA, The Texas College Counseling Association, and the Georgia College Counseling Discussion Listserv. One hundred and seventy nine (179) counselors responded to this survey. Although there continues to be an increase in more severe psychological concerns on campus, in both two year and four year colleges, only 8% of community colleges report on-site psychiatry resources, while 58% of four year schools report on-site psychiatry. (Gallagher, 2013). Although 49% of community college counselors report higher severity in clinical issues, 58% still are involved in activities like academic advising.

Some of the highlights include 81% state that they provide mental health counseling services, 80% hold a Master's Degree, 56% hold licensure (LMHC/LPC), and 30% are nationally certified counselors. The challenges will continue for community and/ two year college counselors with increased enrollment. Being able to provide students what they need, especially with more severe psychological concerns, may require a shift in the many roles in which the community college counselor is engaged in order to provide adequate services to students.

The American College Counseling Association will continue to support community/two year college counselors with the annual survey. We hope to support the efforts of our colleagues in all academic settings through increasing awareness of the needs and services on campus.

American College Counseling Association
Survey of Community/Two Year College Counseling Services
2013-2014

Purpose:

The American College Counseling Association (ACCA) has completed a 4th national survey. The purpose of this survey is to gather benchmark data about common practices for personal/mental health counseling in community/two year colleges, to help in determining how many community/two year colleges have trained counselors providing career counseling.

Method:

The survey was constructed with questions formulated from previous surveys, items originally generated from the ACCA Community College Task Force, and the ACCA Executive Board. The survey was implemented using SurveyMonkey.com. The survey was distributed to a compiled list of community colleges around the United States as well as the ACCA, Texas College Counseling Association, and the Georgia College Counseling Discussion listservs.

Professional counselors who provide personal counseling in a community college setting were invited to respond to the survey. If there were no Counseling Services on campus, the appropriate Dean or Vice President was invited to respond. The response rate for email invitations was 110 out of 617. The listserv response rate was 69. Three reminders were sent to all potential respondents. The survey was closed to new responses on 6/1/14. A $20 gift card was raffled off as a response incentive.

n=179 responses.

Limitations:

The survey was not completed by all who were specifically invited to participate via email. The compiled list of community colleges around the United States may not have been exhaustive. The overall response rate was not possible to calculate because the total possible number of professional counselors at community colleges on each listserv contacted is unknown.

Highlights:

This survey represents 179 Counselors from community/two year Colleges in 39 different states, plus the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

Response highlights:

- 81% of responding community/two year colleges provide mental health counseling services (provided by counselors who are college employees).
- For community/two year colleges that do not provide services, 20% have outsourced services by contract, 22% immediately refer student to off-campus providers, and 20% address the student issue through a Behavioral Intervention/Threat Assessment Team.
- 80% of respondents hold Master's Degrees.
- 56% hold licensure as an LMHC/LPC or equivalent and 18% hold no licensure. 30% are National Certified Counselors.
- 24% earn a salary of $51K to $60K.
- 52% are required to hold independent state licensure for their position.
- 8% have on-site Psychiatry resource.
 - The Gallagher Survey of College Counseling Center Directors reports that 58% of 4 year schools have on-campus Psychiatry (Gallagher, 2013).

American College Counseling Association
Survey of Community/Two Year College Counseling Services
2013-2014

- 59% do not limit the number of Counseling sessions.
- 88% report having a Threat Assessment Team on campus.
- 15% of colleges have a dedicated staff member to provide student case management.
- 81% use their college's website/home page to outreach to students and 37% use Facebook.
- 70% offer suicide prevention programming or resources.
- 49% describe the intensity/severity of clinical issues, relative to past years, as "Higher Severity."
 - The Gallagher Survey reports that 95% of directors report that the recent trend toward greater number of students with severe psychological problems continues to be true on their campuses and 44% of their clients have severe psychological problems (Gallagher, 2013).
- Most common responses regarding utilization of Counseling Services:
 - Average number of sessions per academic year = 3 – 5
 - Average weekly caseload size = 84% of respondents report a caseload size of up to 20 clients a week.
 - Percentage of student body seen for Counseling = 62% see between 1 % and 10%.
- 76% provide mental health counseling and other services in the same office.
- Most services are available during the weekday business hours of 8am-5pm.
- 52% endorsed "We welcome a combination of crisis and general walk-ins" for counseling.
- 86% do not provide on-call or after-hours emergency coverage.
- 50% type or handwrite their counseling notes and statistical tracking.
- 68% of colleges have trained counselors providing career counseling.
- 99% have regular duties/roles in addition to personal counseling. The top 4 are:
 - Committee work (85%)
 - Psychoeducational Programming (72%)
 - Career counseling (66%)
 - Academic advising (58%) / Administrative/Management (58%)
- The top 4 student presenting problems are:
 - Depression
 - Anxiety disorders
 - Stress
 - Academic problems

The last question of the survey asked respondents to share additional information. A brief summary of the response themes:

- Counseling Services on community colleges continues to be a mixture of philosophies and structures across the United States.
- Colleges are using creative means to better serve students.
- There is a growing recognition that Counseling is an important resource on campus.
